VOL. 14, NUMBER 101 MONESSEN, PA, SATURDAY, OCTOBER 9 1915 SIX CENTS THE WEEK

The fall season is here. This country has arranged to loan $500,000,000 to Great Britain and France. Are you still croaking hard times? Maybe a little judgment and business push would help you.

Many Candidates File Primary Expense Account

Expense accounts of candidates as filed in the clerk of courts office in the court house, less those under $50, show that a total of $44,774.41 was spent by those who aspired to be nominated at the primary election on September 21.

The account of Jesse Hancock, who was a candidate for treasurer on the Republican ticket, totaled $3,965.88. His successful opponent, A D. Miller paid out $2,229.44. Harry C. Wilson, also a candidate for treasurer, spent $3,046.43. William H. Rose, a candidate for the same office, paid out $2,413.03. George H. Rosenberry spent $126.08.

The expenses of the three candidates on the non-partisan ticket for judge of the common pleas shows Judge A. D. McConnell spent $2,713.35; George B. Shaw, $1,905.45 and Curtis H. Gregg, $1,192.04.

For the nomination for the office of sheriff, A. P. Darr spent $534.77; W. S. Coffman, $2,509.19; John E. Shields $1,071.10; John P. Kilgore $391, and W. H. Buell, $281.75 and J. A. Grim, $232.

For the campaign for county commisioner, D. R. Mickey parted with $253.05; Herman Hamel, $1,276.30; J. I. Smith, $511.39; Berkey H. Boyd, $943.94; W. H. Baldridge, $597.93; George Deeds, $557.63; John L. Armitage, $906.60; J. H. Ringer, $1,169.32; Sheriff Ben Steele, $992.43; George Brechbill, $1,397.08; George Martin, $180.98 and W. Dick Reamer, $1,740.90.

For the nomination for the office of county controller, John S. Sell's campaign expenses amounted to $4,332.94, while his opponent, John D. Miller paid out $2,505.87.

For the nomination of register of wills, Jesse J. B. Wall incurred expenses amounting to $667.85, while his successful rival, E. A. Cremer paid out $1,862.97.

James Harkins of Mt. Pleasant, spent $229.54 in his campaign for the nomination for the office of county coroner, while W. J. Potts paid out $1,328.55.

For recorder of deeds, Harry S. Miller's accounts totals $457.34.

W. Irwin Hunter for the Democratic nomination for justice of the peace of Greensburg spent $111.35 during the campaign.

The Westmoreland Temperance Federation collected the sum of $557.08 and paid out $537.94, according to a statement filed by W. C. Henderson.

More Water Trouble

The practice of charging a minimum per family instead of per meter, as applied in California by the California Water company will probably be brought to an issue before the Public Service Commission shortly, unless the company makes different arrangements.

People who are using the water believe that they are being walked over rough shod by the company. In houses where two or more families live, using water from only one meter, each family is charged a minimum, regardless of the state of the meter. One minimum per meter would be cheerfully accepted, but sime hard kicks are being registered on the present method.

It is known that several citizens have refused to pay the double minimum, John R. Powell this morning filed his complaint with the company. Ten days from date of the filing with the company, Mr. Powell will place his complaint in the hands of the Public Service Commission, thus bringing the matter to a definite issue.

Novel Selling Plan

B. E. Brown, the local jeweler, has a unique plan, the object of which is to have customers spend a part of their "movie" money for watches or other pieces of jewelry. The plan is somewhat similar to the Christmas Savings Fund inaugurated by the local banks. By paying five or ten cents the first week and increasing it by a similar amount each week, the customer may secure any article without a very great outlay of money. This plan has proved successful in the larger cities and Mr. Brown is to be complimented upon giving local customers the opportunity of securing holiday necessities on the easy payment plan.

Appeal Is Urgent

There seems to be very little heed given to the call sent out by the Board of Charities a few days ago. Many applications for aid are coming in to this organization, but there are no funds. Did we send it all to the Belgians or are we more thoughtful as a people of those far off than those close at hand. Monessen is prosperous today. Thousands of dollars are being spent for automobiles and hundreds of dollars for gasoline, while the poor are dying for the necessaries of life. Pause a moment and ask yourself whether or not this is right. We depend upon a board of charities to look after the hungry, but we fail to provide sufficient means for them to carry on the work with. We depend upon the Salvation army to clothe the naked and feed the hungry. Most of this neglect is thoughtlessness. It is not selfishness and it is to be hoped that the appeal sent out by the board for funds will be responded to with the same spirit as former appeals, and that the treasury of the board will soon be replenished.

For Good Roads

In one of the short addresses made by Governor Martin G. Brumbaugh on his tour of the State Highways, the Governor announced that one thousand miles of dirt roads would be improved each year and the announcement was greeted with the approval of the people who listened to the State Executive talk. State Highway Commissioner Robert J. Cunningham also made the announcement that the Highway Department had decided to use the State Highways and to enforce observance of the speed limits.

The state police will undertake this new duty about November 1. They will establish zones of traffic and will judge the speed of automobilists within those zones. Violations will result in arrests and fines. It has been found that the state laws in relation to speed violations have been ignored and therefore it was decided to put the enforcement of the regulations into the hands of the state constabulary.

An anonuncement of particular interest made by the governor yesterday was that he had determined to make the William Penn highway a reality. Throughout Western Pennsylvania, the establishment of such a highway is a subject of great interest. At different points along the route, the governor said he had found the line of the William Penn highway to be a good road and that he was bound to extend it across the state in order that tens of thousands of tourists could ride with ease and comfort through the beautiful Juanita valley.

To Speak Here

Rev. Max Wertheimer, the converted Jewish Rabbi, will return to Monessen to begin a two weeks' evangelistic campaign in the First Baptist church. The doctor made many friends on his former visit to this city and is recognized as one of the best Bible teachers in America today.

Rev. Dr. Wertheimer

He will speak to the Sunday school scholars of the Baptist church at 10.45 tomorrow morning and will deliver his first sermon to parents in the evening at 7:45 p. m. This will be a wonderful opportunity for the people of Monesen to hear this noted scholar and a general invitation is extended to the public to attend any and all services.

MONESSEN OLYMPIC HOME OF THE BEST ONES

Watch for our next week's program in Monday's paper. Very important for our patrons. For Monday we have the 14th episode of "The Broken Coin," the picture famous the world over. The next feature for Monday is "The Fascination of the Fleur de Lis" in three reels with the star of stars, Cleo Madison and Shirley. Nestors, one of the best comedies. "Snatched from the Altar," with Lee Moran and Eddie Lyons and one of Pathe's comedies with the famous stars, Heinie and Louie," the funniest pair in fildom. Away above any program. Remember it. Trains Next Month

A special from Fairmont, W. Va., says that Col. J. M. Schoonmaker and C. B. Obey of the New York Central lines were there on Oct. 4, and explained why trains had not been operated on the extension of the Monongahela railroad.

The Colonel stated that passenger trains will be operated on or about the first day of November. This is the first official statement given out by the company. This comes as a surprise, as rumors have it that the company would not dare to run trains during the coming winter with a new roadbed. These rumors likely get started from the fact that the company has already had two or three bad road slips. These slips have caused an enormous amount of expenditure to repair and at one point in the track, the roadbed has to be moved a considerable distance.

There will be two trains each day daily. The trains will be heavy, finely finished car type, with all conveniences that a railroad can install.

Further information concerning the trains will be given out when the schedule is finished. It will take about two weeks to get the schedule completed.

Impose $2.00 Tax

Stringent amendments to the dog tax act of 1893 were made by the last Legislature, chief of which is that which provides that assessors shall publish in one or more newspapers of general circulation, a list of all assessed animals, giving sex, name of owner and the number of his tag. If this list is found to be incorrect by any citizen, he may notify the county commissioners and the assessor is liabel for a fine of $2 for each dog he has failed to assess. The owner of the premises upon which a dog is found, is to be considered the legal possessor of the animal, even though he may disclaim all knowledge of the dog.

Other amendments require that all dogs for whom the owner neglects to pay tax, upon proper notice, shall be shot, either by the owner or by a constable. Upon completion of the assessors' reports, the constable or State Constabulary may be called upon to make a general killing of all unlicensed dogs, providing, however, that in the event of such action, the county commissioners shall give 30 days' notice in the newspapers.

One of the acts of 1915 allows townships to make their own laws governing the collection of dog tax, and some townships have decided that dog tax shall be collected when the assessment is made.

Teachers' Institute Plans Are Nearing Completion

Superintendent H. E. Gress of the local public schools, has already completed many of the arrangements for the teachers' institute which begins Nov. 29 and continues for one week, and it is said a splendid array of talent has been secured for both night and day instruction. All sessions will be held in the auditorium of the new High school building and the public is invited to attend.

The Redpath Brockway Bureau will supply the lyceum for the evening entertainments, and will have for the opening night, Monday, November 29 "The Old Home Singers," one of the best national musical organizations in this country. The members of the company will appear in costume. Tuesday evening the original humorist, Strickland W. Gillian will be the attraction. Mr. Gillian is one of the greatest laugh makers on the American stage and will prove one of the big features of the enterainments.

Another excellent musical organization, The Schuman Quintette will be here. This organization is well known here and needs no introduction to local people. Dr. L. B. Wickerman, the famous lecturer, will give one of his famous masterpieces on Thursday evening.

The program of day instructors has nat been fully completed, but will include such well known men as Dr. William Henderson of the University of Pittsburgh, who will be here the entire week, and Dr. Shawkey, state superintendent of schools in West Virginia.

Wednesday and Thursday evening, Dr. S. D. Fess, a member of congress and president of Antioch College at Yellow Springs, O., will be one of the speakers. Professor McDowell will lead the singing again this year and it is expected that several local soloists will assist in the afternoon program.

Celebrate Today

The Philadelphia Candy Kitchen is celebrating the fifth anniversary today and large crowds of old and new friends are paying their respects to this progressive establishment. The management has left nothing undone for the comfort of the patrons and the kitchen has been thrown open for inspection. Here the public will be given an idea how the hundreds of pounds of candy are manufactured each day under the most sanitary conditions.

The High school orchestra of seven pieces will furnish music for this evening and souvenirs will be presented to every visitor. The cold weather will be no barrier to the opening, as it makes ideal candy season and in addition to the ice creams and sherbets, hot drinks of all descriptions will be served.

Vote the Republican Ticket

The name of this town has been paraded broadcast across this county ever since the primary election in a manner detrimental and uncomplimetary to its people. The world loves a good loser. All men admire him and women worship him, kneel at his shrine and throw boquets at his feet. The sore head gets the rotten eggs.

In the present campaign it is the duty of the Republican voters to line up to a man for the straight ticket at the election next month. No Republican should be a party to Democratic victory, for wherein will it benefit any Republican to have the Democrats fill the offices in Greensburg. Get busy now and use your influence to have this town record the highest Republican vote of any town in the county, and in this way our influence will not be scattered and in the gallant home coming of the G. O. P. in the presidential contest of 1916, we will be first in the vanguard.

Too Much Money

Scandalous reports have been circulated about the money that was given out by interests working for certain candidates at the primary election. In every campaign thousands of dollars are spent on holdup schemes that will avail candidates nothing, and in some cases the influences at work for certain candidates hold out the temptation to grafters.

The day has arrived when we doubt if money can change the trend of thought. A man will work for money, but few men will vote for money. Some take the money and go into the booth and vote as they please. In the present campaign this will be the outcome and the thousands that might be shoveled in to carry an issue will avail nothing. It had better go to other sources than holding out a temptation to corrupt voters. Money has lived its day in politics and we as a people are fast reaching the point when as drastic a law will be passed in this state as is now in force in Wisconsin. The lavish expenditure of money to carry an electon must be stopped.

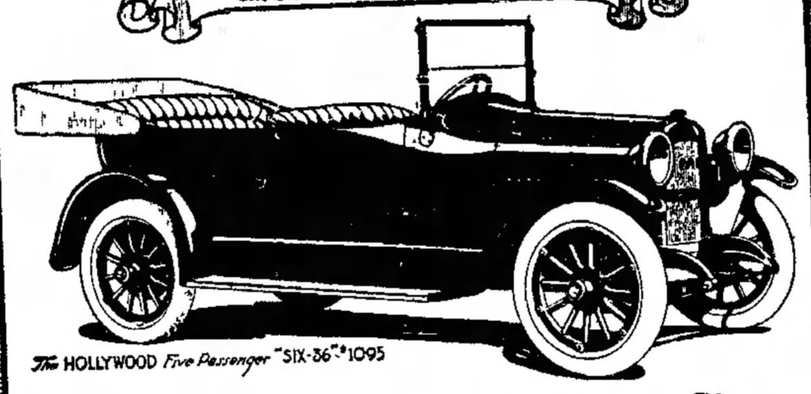
PAIGE

The Standard of Value and Quality



The HOLLYWOOD Five Passenger "SIX-36" $1095

$1095 For This Light Paige Six

Every Dollar Representing Paige Values

The new Paige Light "Six-36", as its makers intended, is winning its way triumphantly on the basis of quality alone.

It has taken its place, like other members of the famous Paige family, as "The Standard of Value and Quality" among five-passenger Sixes

Rigid adherence to Paige policy and to Paige ideals won this triumph.

This policy means that for every dollar asked for this car there is the largest dollar's worth of car value ever offered.

It means also that the new Paige Light Six in beauty, comfort, ease of riding, simplicity of control and ample power, is a characteristic member of the Paige family.

It means, further, with only 2800 pounds weight, an economy of operation that brings it within the reach of any pocketbook.

And just as the top is a real Pantasote top and the upholstery genuine leather, so in every other feature and detail is this Light Six a genuine Paige without compromise.

A personal investigation and a ride in this car is the best way to discover these claims for yourself

If your needs require a seven passenger car investigate the wonderful values of the Paige Big Six at $1295

Remember, it is by no means difficult to manufacture a car for a price.
It is however, quite a difficult thing to produce a motor car of one hundred point excellence and still maintain a selling price to the consumer is not prohibitive.
There you have the true essence of the Paige Idea.

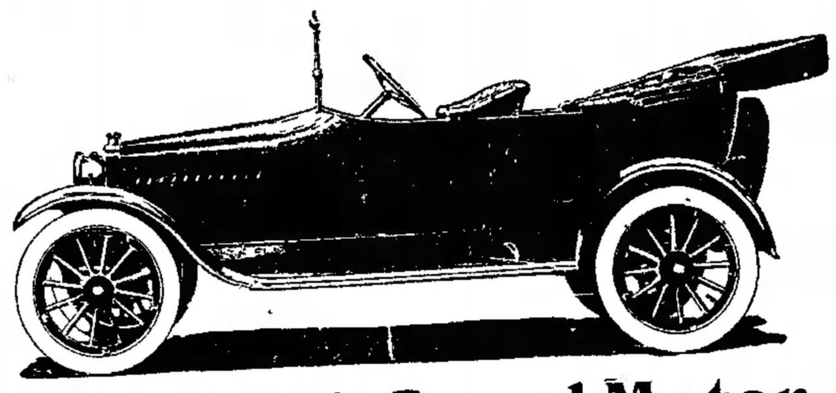
SAXON SIX

A big touring car for five people



Saxon High Speed Motor this year's favored type

Some engineers know that a small sized gasoline motor running at high speed gives as much power as a larger motor at the slow speed type. At the same time it consumes far less gasoline, and greatly reduces the weight of the car.

Those are facts which Saxon engineers have developed and which all engineers now recognize So today the high speed motor is the ideal of most designers

Saxon "Sixes" are built with the wonderful Saxon high speed motor. Experts marvel at its power. Ralph DePalma, the world's greatest racing driver, said the feat of Saxon "Six" in climbing the steep three mile mountain road at Uniontown, Pa., in 4 minutes and 3 seconds was "the most astounding feat I ever saw."

The smoothness and flexibility of Saxon "Six" are constant delight to owners. To them two miles an hour "on high" is not a "stunt" performance, but an ordinary incident in daily driving Except for starting the car, gear shifting is practically unknown to Saxon "Six" drivers.

Saxon "Six" offers you many other features of advanced motor car design. Chief among them are Light weight with ample strength, saving tires and gasoline; beautiful yacht line body, the most modern type of body; ample room for all five passengers.

Fully to appreciate this car you must see it. Come in today.

Six cylinder high speed motor, 30 35 h. p.; yacht-line body; electric starting and lighting; demountable rims; one-man top; Timken axles; vandidium steel cantilever springs; 112 in. wheel base; 31 in. x 3½ in. tires, non-skid in rear.

Deafness Cannot Be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever. nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

CHAPTER LIV.

By Air and Water.

Roleau wakened at dawn. The ripple of water was in his ears. The yacht was under way. Soon it was out of earshot of all that went forward at the wharves. None aboard might know what meant the little group of men who hurried here and there along the water front, giving this order and that.

"In the king's name!" one man cried.

It was, indeed, in the king's name, for now, shallow though was his disguise, none less than Cortislaw had joined Sachio in this last pursuit of the evasive coins Hurried inquiry had convinced Sachio that Roleau had made his escape in this direction.

As for Cortislaw, he raged.

"It is nothing, your majesty," rejoined the dauntless Count Sachio. "All is not ended till all is done. We shall not let them evade us. Come, we have craft of our own. Here are some of our fast boats. Would your majesty dare the submarine?"

"I dare anything that another man dare," rejoined Cortislaw savagely. "Quick, then—order the first boat ready."

Now in truth the nobleman and his sovereign were to embark in a novel undertaking. The long, slim fish-nosed craft, with its upright periscope, received them. They heard the hatch closed firm above them, heard the singing of the air pumps and saw the gray opaque wall of the water, not below them, but around them, above them, as at length the craft, obedient to the command of its officer, slid out from its slip into the harbor and headed forward after what had been pointed out to it as its prey.

Part of the time submerged, most of the time just breaking the surface with the deck, they sped on.

When at length, with hatches open and access given to the deck, they sped on, unsubmerged, close upon their quarry, none of them at first heard the curious humming which came on from the rear, none for the moment saw the vast shape which approached from behind them and above, sailing like some monster bird.

It was Count Sachio at length who turned, his attention arrested by the familiar sound of an air craft motor

"Look! your majesty," said he, turning and pointing.

A sudden exclamation came from the lips of Cortislaw.

"It is from Gretzhoffen!" he said. "Our own air craft are not mobilized I wonder who planned that raid You told me Count Frederick was killed—that you saw it with your own eyes That cannot be King Michael, weak as he is, never would be afoot—never would he have had his air craft moving at this hour. They have been above our city—it is a mercy if they have not dropped bombs upon our shipping"

"Look!" said Sachio. He indicated now the course of the pursuing air craft, which, far from following them directly, now swept aside in a great tangent.

"They are bound also for the yacht!" said Sachio "It is not us, but yonder boat they are pursuing. What does it mean? Surely they can have marked us under water or above—they see us now, if they have eyes. But now they evade us and pursue the boat which we pursue. What does it mean? And who is in command?"

Slow enough would even keen-witted Count Sachio have been to guess the real answer to his own question. It was his enemy who was in command of this pursuing air craft—Count Frederick, not killed, but in full possession of his powers once more

It had been Frederick's plan to hasten across the neutral lands and over Grahoffen itself in a foray of scouting and discovery. He wished to see whether the forces of the enemy would rally or whether they were to lie utterly broken, accepting their defeat. And at the last instant, when he had stepped into the seat of the air craft, he had been followed by one who would not accept denial from him—the young American. Thus they had swept across the broad plain, across the city of Grahoffen itself, and along the water front—and now far down the great arm of the sea which thrust up from the south.

The aeroplane for a time fell off from the direct course held by the submarine. Ahead of the wind and driven at top speed by its own tremendous engines, it advanced in vast sweeps and swoops, at a speed incalculably fast.

"Your majesty," said Count Sachio at length, laying down the glasses with which he had been examining the ship of the air which passed above them, "I was wrong! At first I thought some leader of their aviation corps had developed this raid today, but it is not so. I told you that Count Frederick was dead. My eyes must have deceived me. It is he, yonder! He himself is guiding this pursuit. With him there is another—a woman, your majesty! It is none less than the young American, who has been the most dangerous enemy we yet have met. They two—for what reason I am not informed—are aloft together. Their purpose I can only guess."

The rage of Cortislaw now was such as left him silent.

"Your majesty," said Count Sachio at last, "it must be as your majesty reasons. But it is by sinking yonder craft, not by saving it, that he can most hurt us. Yes, I am convinced, yonder is the coin. How they know it—how they guess it, I do not know. More than once it would seem to me that intuition rather than knowledge has guided them in their plans. I say that yonder coin is bewitched and always fights for Gretzhoffen and not for us."

The chase went on, and now under such curious relations as left the three vessels of the surface, of the subsurface and of the air, drifting along, none taking the offensive.

But though the giant air craft followed close, seeming ever to hold the yacht at its mercy, it made no offensive movement, it seemed rather to shelter than to menace the fleeing vessel which steamed on so gallantly. And in the rear of both, helpless, impotent, with speed and naught but speed at its disposal, came the submarine of Cortislaw and his nobleman. Thus neither of the three could or would hurt another

But Sachio's guess had been right The governing influence in Gretzhoffen affairs scarce was so much reason as instinct, intuition—a woman's intuition. For he had been right—a woman was aloft, yonder with the pilot of the air craft.

"It is a curious chase, mademoiselle," said Count Frederick, turning to the companion at his side and speaking so that his voice could be heard above the loud drone of the engines. "What have we gained? What do we know?"

"Look!" said she. "Look at them below us yonder. They want what we want They pursue what we pursue? Why? Believe me, they know that the coin is on ahead If they know it, why shouldn't we? Monsieur le comte, your ride this morning was an inspiration. The accident of following what might have been the wake of a fish, but was the flash of a submarine—the accident of seeing yonder cloud of smoke ahead—that was fate fighting with us. Believe me, Roleau is yonder on that boat! Believe me, he has the coin Fate is fighting with us at last, I say. The end of all our troubles is at hand."

As they swept forward, now near, now dropping off from the course of the speeding yacht, always Kitty turned her glass upon the decks of the water craft. At length she exclaimed.

"It is he! I see him He is there, standing looking back. He has no glass. He cannot recognize us now But it is he Ah! trust yonder faithful soul not to be traveling in vain I am sure, as though I saw it, that he has the coin with him there. I am sure, as though I saw him, that it is Count Sachio himself in yonder submarine pursuing him. Come! Literally, we must fly"

And fly they did Moment after moment, hour after hour, until at length the smoke above Gretzhoffen harbor thickened, until the towers of the cathedrals and the palace appeared, until the shipping grew more distinct, until the long green slope of the coast fortifications showed to the eyes of Count Frederick, high above the level of the sea

"We will make it safely, mademoiselle," said Count Frederick, at last. "For some reason the submarine does not attack, I do not know why. The three of us soon will be within reach of our own guns I wonder—"

The wonder of Count Frederick was not ill placed. In a few moments they heard the dull report of a 30-centimeter piece of one of the coast batteries—saw the white cloud of smoke burst from the emplacement in front of the disappearing gun. On ahead they saw the white splash of the shell across the bows of the advancing yacht

"What do they mean?" exclaimed Count Frederick. "Ah, I see The yatch carries the ensign of the royal navy of Grahoffen! It is armed. Our gunners take it for an enemy. Now heaven send them bad aim for once!"

A shot, and yet another followed, bracketing the yacht between the ranges Count Frederick held his breath for what he knew would come. Come it did. The yacht, struck full by the impact of a heavy shell, reeled, careened, half broke apart and began to settle by the head.

"It is too bad!" exclaimed Count Frederick. "sunk by our own men! Yonder yacht was coming to our harbor for protection, carrying our own [illegible] carrying our own fortune—the Grahoffen coin! And now all is lost!"

He turned the prow of the air craft full toward the settling yacht. The wake of the submarine was no longer visible.

Then, what the men of the Gretzhoffen batteries saw—what the men of the submarine might have seen had their periscope then been above the surface—was the swift volplane of the air craft which they so long had followed. It swept down now like a giant bird, at a keen angle, as though itself would dip into the sea. Below it there swept the great anchor rope, its end whipping white here and there on the tops of the waves.

"Ahoy, Roleau!" cried the voice of Count Frederick.

Roleau looked up at this summons from the clouds and saw above the rail of the air craft he so long had noted in wonder two faces that he knew and loved! A great sob shook his giant chest. Even his callous soul was affected. Out of the very deep they had come—his master and his mistress—to save him, when he thought all was lost! He lifted up his hands.

The whipping rope coiled and turned, twisted this way and that. But the steady hand at the rudder of the air craft guided it straight onward, downward

Roleau reached out, made a swift grasp, felt himself swept free, off his feet. An instant later, hand over hand, he began his ascent from what had been the extremest peril of his life
